Italy’s Third National Action Plan, in accordance with UN Security Council Resolution 1325 (2000), 2016 - 2019
Italy’s Third National Action Plan, in accordance with UN Security Council Resolution 1325 (2000), 2016 - 2019
Since the adoption of UNSCR1325(2000), Italy has strongly supported the Women, Peace and Security Agenda. In this fast-changing world and current international scenario, Italy confirms its efforts in this regard, also in line with the outcome of relevant international Conferences, starting from the breakthrough of the Fourth World Conference on Women, held in Beijing in 1995.

We are fully aware that today more than ever, the spirit of UNSCR1325(2000) must be kept alive; and the present third Italian National Action Plan (NAP) is our contribution to this end. It enhances the endeavors of Italian Authorities in the implementation of United Nations Security Council Resolutions (UNSCRs) on Women, Peace and Security.

Italy considers the full implementation of these Resolutions as key to fully realizing human rights, peace and security. Within this framework, the Italian Authorities will strengthen their action to prevent and respond to gender-based violence in crisis contexts and to further promote gender equality, women’s empowerment and participation in all areas of life, and women’s human rights in general.

The Italian Government attaches the utmost importance to women’s role in transforming society: this is the heart of UNSCR1325 and confirms the importance that Italy attaches to preventing all forms of discrimination and violence against women, with the understanding that gender equality and women’s empowerment are key, both internationally and nationally, to preventing all forms of violence (e.g. domestic violence, sexual violence as a weapon and/or a tactic of war and in the context of mass atrocities).

Needless to say, domestically, the Italian Government’s efforts are directed towards implementing, inter alia, the National Extraordinary Action Plan on Sexual and Gender-based Violence, adopted in July 2015, and the more recently introduced National Plan of Action on the Fight against Trafficking, adopted in February 2016.

The present Plan focuses on the situation of women and girls in conflict and post-conflict situations, as well as fragile States, as survivors and, overall, “agents of change”. It also aims at improving Italian capacity to support affected populations during all stages of peace operations (conflict prevention and mediation; peacekeeping; peace-making; peace-building; recovery and reconstruction).

If compared to the previous editions, the present National Action Plan captures the diverse set of initiatives taking place within the Italian government across our relevant policies, including foreign policy, development cooperation, security and defense.

We aim to deliver on our commitment to implementing the Women, Peace and Security Agenda through an effective multi-stakeholders, integrated and holistic approach, with the full involvement of civil society organizations (CSOs), academia, NGOs, private sectors, and trade unions. We are aware of the complexity of this text, but this spirit keeps the present Plan alive and will foster its implementation, thanks to a constant fine-tuning with the necessities on the ground and all relevant stakeholders.

Foreword by the Minister of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation, Hon. Paolo Gentiloni

We are convinced that next year, thanks to our role in the United Nations Security Council, we will be able to push forward the WPS Agenda and to reinforce women’s role in all social and economic fields, also in accordance with the newly adopted goals of the 2030 Agenda.

Rome, December 9, 2016

Over the years, UNSCR1325(2000) has increasingly impacted on the mindset, policies and strategies of many countries. Its transformative power with prominence given to women’s role in peace processes indicates the way forward.

The Italian Inter-ministerial Committee for Human Rights (CIDU) has developed an institutional approach in full compliance with such as enriching growing reality. At the third edition of the present Plan, our endeavors revolved around the significance and the relevance to be attributed to a holistic, synergic and multi-stakeholder approach, as well as to the inter-relatedness between relevant measures and actions.

In order to advance this Agenda, the present Plan remains a living document which will be enriched over the next three years thanks to the contributions, inputs and actions of all stakeholders.

As President of the CIDU is my firm intention, in implementing this Plan: i) to focus on the transformative value that women and girls can bring to peace processes; in this regard the newly introduced Act No. 145/2016 on international missions, by its most significant Article 1, further reinforces our commitment to this aim; ii) to spare no efforts to support the role of civil society organizations (CSOs) as an effective vehicle for a far-reaching successful implementation.

Relevant UN Security Council Resolutions and Presidential Statements – from UNSCR1325 through UNSCR2242, just to quote the most known - form, cumulatively, an Agenda, which indicates the cross-cutting nature of this theme and the interplay between international peace and security issues, women’s equality, and human rights.

Italy’s efforts to implement the Women, Peace and Security Resolutions are also linked to the overall promotion and protection of women’s and girls’ human rights and equality within the framework of Italy’s obligations under relevant international Conventions and in view of all commitments made inter alia within the framework of the UN 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda, especially SDG 5 and SDG 16.

This third National Action Plan aims to support the course of action indicated in UNSCR 1325(2000) and in subsequent Resolutions. More specifically, the National Action Plan ensures that a gender perspective will be incorporated in all political areas supporting the concept of peace and will be adopted in all practical measures used for the promotion and protection of peace.

Since the first edition of Italy’s NAP on Women, Peace and Security, and in particular over the past two years, we have seen the growing impact of this issue both globally and locally. The present Plan expands on efforts made at the Security Council level, by addressing the Women, Peace and Security Agenda’s core pillars, besides including actions in a broad array of situations, which do not necessarily fall within the scope of that Body’s mandate.

The Italian government recognizes the breadth of the Women, Peace and Security Agenda. By adopting the present National Action Plan, Italy aims at: (i) promoting and strengthening the actions undertaken by all relevant Authorities involved in the implementation of the present Plan; (ii) broadening the scope for action by stakeholders in view of the rapid development in this area – as indicated, inter alia, in the last relevant UNSCR 2242 (2015), adopted in October 2015, which considers the need to address existing “Challenges”, including violent extremism, IDPs, and Refugees, and the global impact of climate change; invites Member States to ensure increased representation of women at all decision-making levels in national, regional and international institutions and mechanisms for the prevention, and resolution of conflict; and recognizes the lack of adequate gender-sensitive humanitarian responses; (iii) further promoting systematization of actions, based on an integrated approach.

The ultimate Aims of the actions undertaken under Italy’s present NAP are, as follows:

1. To reduce the impact of conflict on women and girls, while promoting their meaningful and transformational participation in the processes of prevention, mitigation, and resolution of conflict, as well as in decision-making processes, at all levels;
2. To raise awareness, educating and strengthening existing structures, on Women, Peace and Security Agenda and related issues.
Methodology

The present Plan has been elaborated on the basis of the following principles: transparency, dialogue and a multi-stakeholder approach. To this end, a national open-ended (inter-ministerial and participatory) Working Group (OEWG) on Women, Peace and Security, led by the Inter-ministerial Committee for Human Rights, has been established.

Numerous meetings have been held, involving relevant stakeholders, including CSOs, academia, NGOs, and other relevant institutional actors. Moreover, a particular focus has been placed on culture and communication. Therefore, a special workshop has been held under the chairmanship of the President of the Inter-ministerial Committee for Human Rights - with the involvement of representatives of the press office and the Directorate for Cultural Affairs of the MFA, as well as the media sector - in which a multi-dimensional approach has been set up in view of the implementation of the present Plan.

Against this background, the present Italian National Action Plan is organized around seven Goals (Thematic Areas) - which consider Commitments, Actions, Actor/s concerned, and Indicators1 that reflect the content of relevant UNSCRs and international and regional standards. Specifically, the present Plan also includes a set of Indicators inspired by both indicators contained in UN Secretary-General Report on Women, Peace and Security (S/2010/173)2 and those ones under the Comprehensive Approach to the EU implementation of the UNSCRs 1325(2000), in particular to personnel taking part in peace operations.

Given the very strong importance of this Plan, conceived to be a living document,3 Italy is committed to implementing it through a close collaboration between the above-mentioned Working Group, civil society and the most relevant actors, in a multi-stakeholder fashion. Accordingly, this multi-stakeholder mechanism will oversee the implementation of the present National Plan, including by progress reporting to be conducted with relevant CSOs, in order to guarantee operational effectiveness and a more holistic and synergic approach.

The Plan shall remain in force for a period of three years and will be constantly monitored, including also at Parliament level, through periodic meetings.

1 Depending on the scope of the Action, the Indicators/them1/s may be either quantitative or qualitative and measure progress against either output/deliverable (i.e. activities, reports, publications) or outcome (the impact of those activities).

2 As later developed in the Strategic Framework 2011 – 2020. Relevant indicators aim to be “Smart”, namely Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant and Time-bound.

3 Meaning that with the commitments and projects undertaken by Italy, the present Plan, while showing its “strategic content”, is a work in progress and will be subject to further additions, in the course of next three years.

Monitoring and Evaluation

The actions and indicators included in this National Action Plan will be used by the respective Administrations to assess progress and performance in implementing this plan.

Italy will publish an annual progress report to be prepared by the Inter-ministerial Committee for Human Rights (CIDU), in consultation with both civil society and the Parliament, including the inter-parliamentary group for women, women’s rights and gender equality (All-Party Women’s Caucus), established in October 2015.

The open-ended Working Group (OEWG), led by CIDU, will be responsible for the implementation of this Plan, including application and monitoring. To this end, it will establish a permanent coordination mechanism with CSOs and other relevant actors.

The OEWG will meet at least every four months, and will provide the members of CIDU with information, accordingly.

The OEWG will annually revise existing Goals, commitments, actions and indicators, in light of lessons learned, the EU Comprehensive Approach, and emerging issues and policy agendas relating to Women, Peace and Security, and in response to lessons learned and challenges, as identified under the monitoring process.

On 31 October 2000, the UN Security Council unanimously adopted Resolution 1325 on “Women, Peace and Security”. This is the first Council resolution, to explicitly mention the impact of war and conflict on women and the contribution of women themselves in conflict resolution and sustaining peace. Since then, UN Member States (UNMS) have been regularly invited to strengthen their commitment to the implementation of UNSCR1325, by preparing National Action Plans.23

- UNSCR 1325 (2000) recognizes that: 1. Women and children are the most affected by the consequences of armed conflict; 2. Women play a vital role in the prevention and resolution of conflicts, as well as in peace-building activities. Moreover, by this Resolution, UN Security Council: 3. Invites UNMS to ensure greater participation of women in all decision-making processes, in particular, in the mechanisms of prevention, management and resolution of conflicts.

Since 2000, the UN Security Council has unanimously adopted further Resolutions on Women, Peace and Security: UNSCR1325 (2000), UNSCR1820 (2008), UNSCR1888 (2009), UNSCR1889 (2009), UNSCR1960 (2010), UNSCR2106 (2013), UNSCR2122 (2013), UNSCR2242 (2015).24 However, other UNSCRs should be integrated with this Agenda and can be equally considered, such as UNSCR1983 (2011), focusing on the impact of HIV and AIDS on women in conflict and post-conflict situations, as well as on the need for specific measures on social, medical and psychological assistance (thus, also with a focus on reproductive health and family planning), UNSCR1674 (2006) on the protection of civilians (et seq.), UNSCR 2250 (2015), by which the UNSC urges UNMS to increase representation of youth in decision-making at all levels, and the more recent UNSCR 2282 (2016) on post-conflict peace-building.

23 The idea of “National Action Plans for the Implementation of Resolution 1325” was launched for the first time by the President of the UN Security Council in his Presidential Statement of 28 October 2004, inviting UN membership to push forward the implementation of Resolution 1325, “including through the development of national action plans”. Against this background, the UN Secretary-General introduced the “Go To Tolerance policy” to be applied to military personnel, both military and civilian, who sexually abuse civilians (women and children) in areas of conflict (Such crimes are punishable by both the International Criminal Court (ICC) and national courts - no forms of impunity can be admissible); and the UN General Assembly introduced the “United Nations Comprehensive Strategy on Assistance and Support to Victims of Sexual Exploitation and Abuse by United Nations Staff and Related Personnel”, envisaging assistance to victims in terms of medical health-care, legal services, and psychological support.

24 UNSCR 1325 focuses on the disproportionate impact of armed conflict on women, as well as on women’s involvement in conflict-resolution and prevention, peace negotiations, peace-building, peacekeeping, and post-conflict reconstruction. UNSCR 1820 (2008) considers sexual violence as a tactic of war and places it as a threat to international peace and security. UNSCR 1888 (2009) focuses on the importance of increasing women’s participation in mediation and decision-making processes with regard to conflict resolution and peace-building. It also mandates peacekeeping missions to protect women and children from sexual violence during armed conflict, and envisages the appointment of a “Special Representative” and a “Team of Experts” on the use of sexual violence in conflict. UNSCR 1889 (2009) urges to take further measures to improve women’s participation during all stages of peace processes, besides envisaging the elaboration of relevant global indicators by the UNSG. UNSCR 1960 (2010) provides for an accountability system for sexual violence in conflict. UNSCR 2106 (2013) focuses, inter alia, on the need to strengthen the combat against impunity for crimes of sexual violence in conflict. UNSCR 2122 (2013) further operationalizes the previous Resolutions by, inter alia, considering gender equality and women’s empowerment as key to international peace and security; besides strengthening the commitment to involving women in peace talks, and the need to ensure access, under humanitarian aid, to sexual and reproductive health-care services.

Italy recognizes the importance of reading 1325 Agenda-related Resolutions, especially the recent UNSCR2242. (By UNSCR2242 (2015) 25, UNSC reiterates “its intention to increase attention to women, peace and security as a cross-cutting subject in all relevant thematic areas of work on its agenda, including threats to international peace and security, caused by terrorist acts”. This also considers, inter alia, “the changing global context of peace and security, in particular relating to rising violent extremism, which can be conducive to terrorism, the increased numbers of refugees and internally displaced persons, the impacts of climate change and the global nature of health pandemics” and “reiterates its call for Member States to ensure increased representation of women at all decision-making levels in national, regional and international institutions and mechanisms for the prevention, and resolution of conflict, encourages those supporting peace processes to facilitate women’s meaningful inclusion in negotiating parties’ delegations to peace talks, calls upon donor countries to provide financial and technical assistance to women involved in peace processes, including training in mediation, advocacy, and technical areas of negotiation, as well as providing support and training to mediators and technical teams on the impact of women’s participation and strategies for women’s effective inclusion”), jointly with relevant Reports of the UN Secretary-General (the latest one is contained in UN Doc. S/2015/716), which, over the years, have emphasized the need to focus on inter alia: all forms of human rights violations affecting women in armed conflict; women’s economic security; and the primary causes of violence that need to be tackled by appropriate national capacities. Likewise, the following UN documents are to be considered: the UN Strategic Results Framework on Women, Peace and Security, 2011-2020; the relevant UN Women Guidelines; 26 and the Global Study-2015 on the implementation of United Nations Security Council resolution 1325, authored by R. Coomaraswamy (the results of which have been submitted under the above UN Doc. S/2015/716).27

In particular Italy is among the sixty-three United Nations Member States to have adopted a specific National Action Plan in accordance with UNSCR 1325(2000). As of September 8, 2016, forty-three Member States of the United Nations have a specific National Action Plan in force (www.inclusivesecurity.org).

25 UNSCR 2242 (2015), adopted on the occasion of UNSCR 1325’s 15th anniversary, envisages the WPS Agenda as key to addressing the existing “Challenges”, including violent extremism, IDPs and Refugees, and the global impact of climate change. Furthermore, this Resolution encourages the forthcoming Plan of Action to Prevent Violent Extremism to integrate women’s participation, leadership and empowerment as one of United Nations strategy and response, envisaging the establishment of an Informal Expert Group on WPS; and calls for funding, especially for women’s organizations, whose work is of the utmost importance in this area (See in this regard the UN Plan of Action Against Violent Extremism, UN. Doc A/67/674).

Within the framework of the present Plan, the following last relevant international Conferences are to be mentioned: the UN Sustainable Development Summit-2015; the UN High Level Review Conference on the 15th anniversary of UNSCR1325(2000); the World Humanitarian Summit-2016; and the United Nations General Assembly High-Level Meeting on Addressing Large Movements of Refugees.

With specific regard to UNSDGs, the Italian Government has actively participated in the negotiations on Agenda 2030 on Sustainable Development, supporting the option that the Agenda addresses directly the challenge of gender equality; while mainstreaming gender equality across the other goals and targets. Mention has to be made also of relevant national commitments, indicated (http://www.agenziacooperazione.gov.it/wp-content/uploads/2016/06/Gli-impegni-italiani-a-Istanbul.pdf) on the occasion of the World Humanitarian Summit (May 2016, Turkey).

Within this framework, mention has to be made also of the following: the G8 Declaration “Commitment to End Sexual Violence in Conflict” endorsed by Foreign Ministers in April 2013; the “Call to Action on Protecting Girls and Women in Emergencies” launched in 2013; the “Preventing Sexual Violence Initiative” and the International London Summit held in June 2014; and the 2015 United Nations Climate Change Conference, COP 21.

Over the years, Italy contributed and firmly supports the «UN Framework of Analysis for Atrocity Crimes», developed jointly by the Offices of the UN Secretary-General Special Advisers on Genocide Prevention and Responsibility to Protect (http://www.un.org/en/preventgenocide/adviser/pdf/framework%20of%20analysis%20for%20atrocity%20crimes_en.pdf) respectively, as well as the Code of Conduct on mass atrocities.

In keeping with its core values of rule of law, non-discrimination, respect for human rights, democracy, and good governance, Italy is committed to the effective implementation of the UNSCRs on Women, Peace and Security.

At the multilateral level, the Italian Government has always supported the implementation of UNSCR1325 by, inter alia, promoting outreach, disseminating knowledge and raising awareness. Italy also participates in various initiatives organized by other UN Member States and by civil society, also at the sidelines of sessions of the main UN bodies, including the UN Human Rights Council and the UN Commission on Status of Women. Italy also strongly supports international initiatives to prevent and combat sexual violence in conflict, including the G8 Declaration on Preventing Sexual Violence in Conflict and the Call to Action on Protection from Gender-based Violence in Emergencies.

- Over the past few years, Italy has continued to support the advancement and implementation of UNSCR 1325(2000) and of other relevant documents under different modalities and various contexts, such as the G-7 summits, the NATO, the OSCE, and the EU.

Within the EU, Italy aims to strongly support EU action in this area, in accordance with EU Documents, including: Comprehensive Approach to the EU Implementation of the UNSCRs 1325 and 1820 on women, peace and security (Doc.2008 - 1567/1/08 Rev 1); Indicators for the Comprehensive Approach to the EU implementation of the UNSCRs 1325 and 1820 on women, peace and security (Doc. 2010 - 11948/10) – as updated in September 2016; the new EU Action Plan on Human Rights and Democracy, 2015 -2019; and the “Strategic engagement for gender equality, 2016-2019.”

In the development cooperation and humanitarian aid, Italy continues to promote several initiatives, including financial commitments, to prevent and assist victims of gender-based violence and to enable women’s empowerment. Relevant programs take place in various priority countries, mainly in Afghanistan, the MENA region, Eastern Europe and in Sub-Saharan Africa. More specifically, the Italian Development Cooperation supports through annual voluntary contributions the activities of UN-Women, UNFPA and continues to be one of the major donors of the Joint UNFPA/UNICEF Program, entitled “Female Genital Mutilation/Cutting: Accelerating Change”. Moreover, the Italian Development Cooperation finances projects implemented by humanitarian agencies and Civil Society Organizations (CSOs), aimed at protecting and assisting women in emergency situations, with a specific focus on Syria and Somalia.

- The commitment to recognize VAW as a human rights issue, to challenge de jure and de facto discrimination against women and to end impunity for the widespread use of sexual violence in war and armed conflict has been strengthened after 2009 when Italy launched the first G8 initiative against VAW. Since then, the support against THB, FGM, CEFM and GBV has been strengthened at both the political and financial levels.

- In November 2013, Italy endorsed the “Call to Action on Protecting Girls and Women in Emergencies”, recognizing that Violence Against Women and Girls (VAWG) is aggravated in all emergencies and humanitarian crises and committing to a core set of principles and operational actions to promote and protect women and girls and to create a safer environment for them during and in the aftermath of conflict and natural disasters. More specifically, Italy has committed to implementing the 2016-2020 Road-Map, through specific actions.

28 In particular Actions under Section III.
29 Securing inter alia no. 5. Promoting equality between women and men in decision-making; 6. Combating gender-based violence and protecting and supporting victims; 5. Promoting gender equality and women’s rights across the world.
Italy participated in the Roundtable on “Women and girls: catalyzing action to achieve gender equality”, set up during the World Humanitarian Summit and has committed to ensuring universal access to sexual and reproductive health and rights, to implement a coordinated global approach to prevent and respond to gender-based violence in crisis contexts, including through the Call to Action on Protection from Gender-based Violence in Emergencies and to fully comply with humanitarian policies, frameworks and legally binding documents related to gender equality, women’s empowerment, and women’s human rights.

Along these lines, given the number of women, men, girls and boys involved in armed conflict and post-conflict situations, specific mention has to be made of medical care, training activities and a gender perspective targeting health-care providers and law enforcement - especially at Hotspots.

Italy’s efforts to implement the Women, Peace and Security Resolutions are also linked to the overall promotion and protection of women’s and girls’ human rights and equality within the framework of the 1995 Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action, Italy’s obligations under relevant international conventions, including the UN Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings (Warsaw Convention), and the Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence (Istanbul Convention), as well as within the framework of the Call to Action on Protection from Gender-based Violence in Emergencies and the more recent 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda, especially SDG 5 and SDG 16.30

Against this background, the OEWG on Women, Peace and Security, led by the Inter-Ministerial Committee for Human Rights (acronym in Italian, CIDU) - that acts as focal point - with the UN Office of the General Directorate for Political Affairs and Security (DGAP), consists of: the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation - General Directorate on Political and Security Affairs; General Directorate for Development Cooperation (acronym in Italian, MAECI); the newly-established Italian Agency for Development Cooperation (acronym in Italian, AICS); the Ministry of Interior; the Ministry of Defense (MoD); Guardia di Finanza Corps (GdiF); the Ministry of Health; the Department for Equal Opportunities (DEO); the Ministry of Justice; the National Institute of Statistics (ISTAT); the National Institute for Health, Migration and Poverty (INMP); the Italian broadcasting service – RAI Culture Channel (RAI-Cultura); and the Rome-based Office of the UNHCR.
